HOSTED EXPERIENCES by SATOPIA TRAVEL

EMBARK ON A CAPTIVATING JOURNEY OF CULTURE, CULINARY DELIGHTS, AND BREATHTAKING LANDSCAPES

Embarking on an epic journey to the private island of South America's most beloved chef Francis Mallmann starts with a plane, car, and boat ride to reach La Isla where his must-see episode of Netflix's Chef's Table was shot. La Isla is one of the most secluded private islands in the world.

You'll start your experience in Buenos Aires, Argentina's capital often called the "Paris of South America" for its neoclassical architecture, artful pastries, and sprawling green spaces. This is the city where soccer games are to be wept over, whip-quick moves of tango never miss a beat, and the sounds of sizzling asado and flowing Malbec carry late into the night.

From Buenos Aires, you'll fly to Comodoro Rivadavia, a coastal city in Patagonia, where the local airport is the closest to your gateway to Lago La Plata and is the transit point for your journey forward to your Francis Mallmann's Hosted Experience.

MEET YOUR HOST

Francis Mallmann (born 1956) is an Argentinian celebrity chef, author and restaurateur who specialises in various traditional Patagonian methods of barbecuing food with open-fires. Without a doubt, Francis is South America's most famous chef and he has been featured on numerous international television programs, as well as on the Netflix original series Chef's Table focusing on his life and cooking techniques.

After a career in gastronomy built on fine-dining French cuisine, Francis went back to his roots in the mid '90s, learning local techniques from his childhood home of Patagonia and bringing them to the high-end food scene. Francis Mallmann is a man whose approach to cooking and living feels like a homage to a forgotten time and place. While many influential chefs around the world have engaged in an escalating competition to be as creative and forward-thinking in gastronomy as possible, Francis has swerved in the opposite direction, forsaking haute-cuisine. Instead, he focuses on a primal style of hospitality whose core comes down to one-syllable words: smoke, fire, air, stone, salt, rain, meat, and wine.

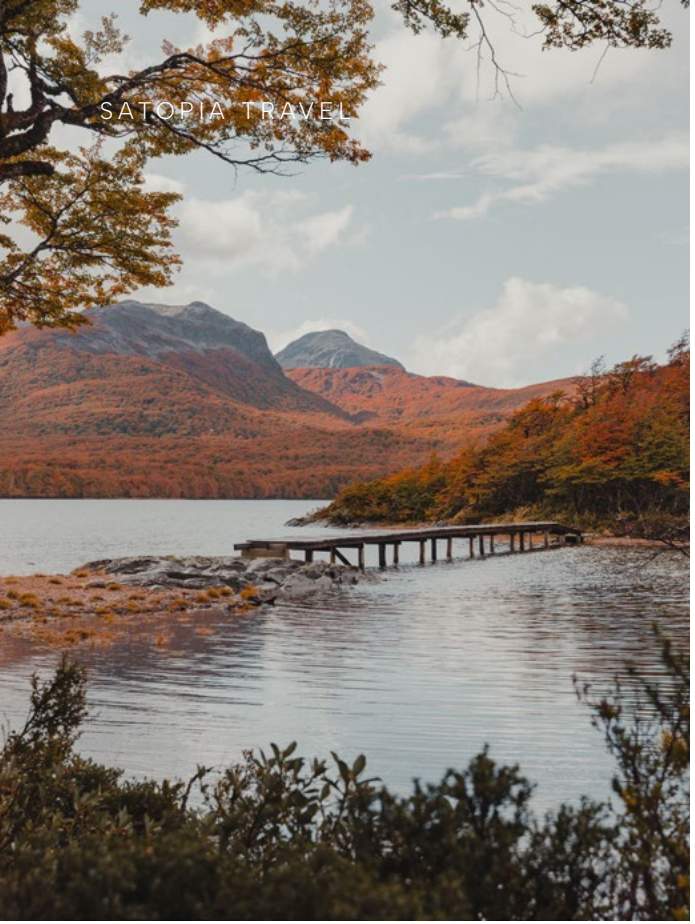

EXPERIENCE DETAILS | 2024

Satopia Travel presents an exclusive journey through Argentina, unveiling the enigmatic charms of Buenos Aires and an unparalleled Open-Fire-Cooking Hosted Experience with Culinary Maestro Chef Francis Mallmann on La Isla, his Patagonian nature sanctuary.

Francis views food as he does almost everything else, as an aesthetic expression. And on this Hosted Experience with the master of open-fire cuisine, there's much more than unforgettable dining. There are the fire-side chats, the nature walks, and a full-board menu of seasonal produce, where you'll never taste a more succulent steak or a heartier stew, prepared by your host, Francis Mallmann.

Francis Mallmann will share his open wood-fire cooking techniques and culinary philosophy in the wilderness of Patagonia. This is a unique opportunity to spend time with the chef himself and learn about his seven-fires techniques
